Sts. Peter and Paul Apostles

FEAST OF STS. PETER AND PAUL

Most of the apostles and lots of saints have their own feast day, but how about the two most famous saints of the early church?

On February 22nd the Church celebrates the “Chair of Peter” as a sign that Peter was the first among the apostles and the one designated to lead the early Church after Jesus’ Resurrection and Ascension.

But there is no “Feast of St. Peter.”

St. Paul, although not one of the Twelve, was an Apostle commissioned by Jesus (which is celebrated on January 25th as “The Conversion of St. Paul” commemorating the Damascus Road episode described in Acts of the Apostles: 9:1-31, 22:1-22, and 26:9-24.

But there is no “Feast of St. Paul.”

The two leading saints of the early Church are celebrated together in the Feast of Saints Peter and Paul, (or the Solemnity of Saints Peter and Paul if celebrated on a Sunday). This celebration is a liturgical feast in honor of the martyrdom in Rome of the apostles Saint Peter and Saint Paul and is observed on June 29th as found in The Roman Martyrology without declaring that to be the day of their deaths.

St. Augustine of Hippo (late 4th century) says in his Sermon 295: “One day is assigned for the celebration of the martyrdom of the two apostles. But those two were one. Although their martyrdom occurred on different days, they were one.” Thus it is clear that the celebration is of ancient origin. There is some speculation that the date selected may be the anniversary either of their death or of the translation of their relics.
